ABSTRACT

Collaborative work on an interactive system is facilitated by accurately capturing and displaying information on an interactive system, wherein multiple users may work together for supplying and receiving information on a common writing surface. A whiteboard device is provided to project an image on desk surface. The present invention enables each user to have at least two display areas to work on.